| Update on Births, Deaths and Marriages Archiving Project | Cr D Griffiths reported that steady progress continues on the Births, Deaths and Marriages Archiving Project. All hard copy Registers have been digitally scanned and work has begun on | creating the searchable electronic speed sheet references. Cr D Griffiths advised that the one of the current Registers in use is a copy. The original book has not been located. The copy has some gaps in some of the birth records. This has resulted in difficulties for some Pitcairn born individuals, who should be listed, being unable to access their birth records. The Island Secretary and the Administrator have made enquiries with the Governor’s Office and the Court Registrar in the hope the original Register may have been sent off-island and archived. The matter was also discussed with the Assistant Attorney General when she visited last month.

To provide supporting evidence for missing birth records the Island Secretary requested and has been granted access to one or two local privately held family registers. These have been scanned as general records and electronic copies have been provided to those who lent them. This will assist the Attorney General’s Office and the Registrar when assessing other forms of birth records when necessary.

It was noted that the Western Pacific Archives (from the time when the British High Commission operated out of Fiji) are currently held at Auckland University Library. This may be worthy of further exploration with regard to locating the missing, original Register.

The Mayor and Council acknowledged Cr D Griffiths for her commitment to the project.
